

CONSULTANT PREGNANCY CARE FEES

All packages (except the delivery-only package) include regular antenatal consultations, delivery (including all methods of delivery), daily postnatal visits whilst you are in hospital, and one postnatal consultation about six weeks after delivery.

The optimal antenatal care with a consultant ideally should include a consultation every 3-4 weeks until the 32nd week of pregnancy, then every 2 weeks until the 36th week, then weekly until delivery. However, this is only a suggested guidance, based on a normally progressing pregnancy without any complications. Should you require more frequent care and supervision by your consultant, this will be arranged at no extra cost so that you are seen as often as necessary based on your individual needs. This applies to all packages except the delivery-only package.

The delivery-only package includes only one antenatal consultation before delivery, the delivery itself (including all methods of delivery), daily postnatal visits whilst you are in hospital and one postnatal consultation six weeks after delivery.

Should you opt for a C-section at the Portland Hospital, the anaesthetist fee of £2,000 will also apply. The anaesthetist will invoice you separately after delivery.

All prices shown EXCLUDE hospital fees, investigations performed during the pregnancy (i.e. scans and blood tests) and anaesthetic charges. If you are not a UK resident, full payment is required in advance.

As part of any packaged price, you will be given access to your consultant's direct contact details – this includes the consultant's email address and their mobile number (except for delivery-only package) – for use both during and outside working hours.
